Gen. Andrade said all the rebels were self seekers, in proof of which he showed THE SUN correspondent the following autograph letter written by Pino Guerra, whose signature is known by the correspondent, written in December about the uprising:

"HAVANA, Dec. 6, 1905. *ESTREMED FRIEND: After my conversation with you by telephone I visited my creditors. After much dickering they agreed to settle for $2,000 which you had offered me. Imagine my surprise at your letter saying you cannot favor me. Is it possible after my composition that you will abandon me? Trusting this is not so, I am, abandon mer yours respectfully, "FAUSTINO GUERRA."

Gen. Andrade said he forgave Pino because the Congressman and the country's good demanded that the election should proceed peacefully.

The malcontents, said Gen. Andrade, have been encouraged by the clemency shown them. The Government's strength must be shown, otherwise Cuban independence will be lost. It was easy to see the contempt in which Gen. Andrade held former Secretary of State O'Farrill.

VARYING VIEWS ON REVOLUTION. Cubans, Returning, Cautjous About Expressing Themselves.

A number of Cubans who have spent the summer in and around New York sailed for Havana yesterday on the Ward Line steamer Mexico. With the friends who had gathered to see them off the Cubans held an impromptu political caucus on the dock. The sole question was, What is going to be the result of the revolution? It was answered variously and with varying degrees

Among those who sailed was Senor Sobrado, Governor of the province of Pinar del Rio, which has been the seat of the most vigorous actions on the part of the revolutionists. The Governor did not hesitate to speak ourloyally for the government. He said:

"I heard rumors of impending trouble before I left Havana for New York, but, like most people, I did not pay any particular attention to them. I am confident that the great majority of people, whether they be Liberals or Moderates, will look upon this sporadic outbreak in a sensible manner and realize that they cannot afford to have and realize that they cannot afford to have their business ruined by a revolution. I have no fear about going back and taking up my work as Governor of Pinar del Rio, even though Pino Guerra seems to be making my province the seat of his operations." When pressed as to his belief concerning the final outcome of the revolution, Gov. Sobrado tempered his optimism with a note of caution. "Of course," said he note of caution. "Of course," said he, "the unexpected sometimes happens, and it is barely possible that I have underrated the force of this revolutionary movement, yet I may say that I will be very much surprised if the revolt is a success.

Señor Risquet, a negro and a member of the Cuban Congress, who also sailed yesterday on the Ward Line steamer, said:

"I am not in favor of the revolution and I hope that it will be crushed. Yet I cannot eav that its coming was any surprise to

A Cuban business man, well known in Havana, who left on the Mexico yesterday, gave his views on the subject of the revolution and its possible outcome only on the strict promise that his anonymity would be preserved. He could not well afford, he said, to have his utterances appear over his name, since he was going back to Havana.

I admit that either step might establish a bad precedent. If the United States should intervene the charge could be raised that this country was trying to suppress Cuban independence. If Palma should resign then in three or four more years the malcontents would raise a row and try to force the resignation of some future President."

Others who were on the dook to bid farewell to the departing Cubans freely expressed themselves against the Palma Government, though their wisdom prompted them to withhold their names. It was said that Palma was running a one man Government, after the manner of the Central American diotatorships, and that the protest was against Palma and not against any political code or propaganda. political code or propaganda.

WOMAN FOUND BADLY HURT, Lying in Coney Island Street With Skull Fractured.

Two men called out for a policeman at Seventeenth street and Railroad avenue, Coney Island, last night, and when Police man Adams appeared they showed him the body of a well dressed elderly woman lying near by. Dr. Whiton from the Reception Hospital looked the woman over and said that she was unconscious but still

A broken nose and a fractured skull and contusions about the eyes showed she had received a terrible mishandling. A valuable diamond brooch and several diamond rings on her person seemed to show robbery was not the motive. The victim was sent to the Reception Hospital in a serious condition.

The spot where the woman's body was found is close to the Church of Our Lady of Solace, in Seventeenth street. The police say the woman is Sarah Lynch, the wife of John Lynch of 57 West Seventeenth street, Coney Island, a few doors from the church. The couple lived at that address, keeping no servants. They seemed in good circumstances, but were not well known by neighbors. They came to the house in the spring and were thought to be only summering.

The police say the man left the house in the evening to go to a nearby drug store for medicine. An inquiry at the drug store revealed the fact that he never had arrived.

NO MORE "UNKNOWN DEAD." Thumb and Finger Prints Hereafter to Identify American Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.-Beginning on Saturday the army will put into operation the Pudd'nhead Wilson system of identification. The thumb print of every man in the service will be taken and filed away with the army records of his enlistment, and every recruit who presents himself to join Uncle Sam's boys in blue will be required to place his thumb print upon a piece of glass so that, dead or alive, there will be no mistaking him.

This departure in the method of identification in the army is the result of investigation by a board appointed by Major-Gen. Ainsworth, the military secretary of the army. Hereafter there will be no such thing as the "unknown dead," unless the soldier killed has his right hand blown to pieces, as the thumb print on file in the War Department will identify him. The system also contemplates taking the impression of different fingers, so the loss of the thumb would not shut off means of identification.

The system will be employed in connection with the Bertillion system for the detection of deserters, and also to prevent fraudulent indorsements. The board which made the recommendation, and of which Major Walter D. McCaw, surgeon, was chairman, reached the conclusion that the chances of the finger prints of two persons being alike are one in 64,000,000,000.

WATSON SUGGESTED LETTER. Result of Story That President Desired Democratic House Elected.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 .- A Republican Member of Congress who will have much to do with the Republican Congressional campaign this year said to-day that President Roosevelt did not write his recent letter to Representative James E. Watson of Indiana on his own motion, but prepared and published it at the request of Representative Watson. Speaker first saw the letter at the home of Mr. Watson, in Rushville, when the latter read it Representative Watson is said to have been impressed with the necessity for such a declaration for use in campaigning in Missouri, Indiana and West Virginia, where Republicans had been impressed with a story that the President desired the election of a Democratic House to rebuke Republicans who had balked his legislation plans. Such a story would find credence publicans who had balked his legislation plans. Such a story would find credence only in benighted sections, but the Indiana Congressman explained to the President with what effect the Democratic politicians had been working the story. Then the with what effect the Democratic political had been working the story. Then President promptly decided to show interest in the outcome of the Congression campaign by writing the letter.

WOMAN JAILED FOR FORGERY.

TALKING WITH HUSBAND IN WHEN ARRESTED.

Gang Copied Signatures on Facsimiles of Checks Printed in Newspapers-More Than $10,000 the Reported Harvest -George M. Cohan's Name Used.

Mrs. Katharine McCarthy of 202 West Eighty-eighth street, whose husband, Thomas, was locked up in the Tombs on Wednesday charged with forgeries netting several thousand dollars from local banks, was arrested vesterday as she sat chatting with her husband at his cell door.

She is accused of uttering a forged check and presenting it for payment to the Knickerbooker Trust Company. The check was made out to Katharine Brown, her maiden name, it is said, and was for $250. It was signed with the name of George M. Cohan, the actor, and the forgery was perfect.

When the woman was arraigned in the Tombs court before Magistrate Breen Assistant District Attorney Lockwood and Assistant Superintendent Norman T. Bailey of the Pinkerton agency, acting for the American Bankers' Association, told of their new discoveries in the plot. Up to date they know of $4,000 worth of checks cashed and have traces of $3,500 additional forgeries and believe that the gang got not less than $10,000.

Thomas J. Schaad; a young bank clerk and messenger, of 106 East 101st street, employed by the Bank of New York, turned State's evidence a day or so ago and made an interesting detailed affidavit of how the game was worked. In addition to the checks which he got out of his bank and temporarily loaned to them so they could trace the signatures, the gang noticed that several of the newspapers at the time were publishing facsimile reproductions of checks given to aid the victims of the San Francisco earthquake and fire.

Whenever a check appeared signed by a man or woman known to have a large bank account the gang made careful note of it and when opportunity presented used the signature on forged paper. One name that appealed to them because it was easily reproduced was that of George M. Cohan, the actor and playwright. They found his credit so good that checks bearing his forged signature were readily cashed in three banks for $2,160.

One of these was made out to Katharine Brown for $250, on the Knickerbooker Trust Company, and Mrs. McCarthy had no trouble at all in getting it cashed. Another was made out on May 8 in the name of Philip Smith for $960, and when presented to the Mercantile National Bank, Broadway and Dey street, it was cashed, as was one made in the same name on May 15 for $850 and presented at the United States Exchange Bank at 23 West 125th street. When young Schaad told how the published checks had been utilized Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Bailey got a list of them and traced every check. They found three totalling $2,160, and all signed with Cohan's name, in the Knickerbocker Trust Company, whose officials could not at first believe they had been forged, so cleverly were the checks made out.

They learned of a fourth check for $1,000, which was presented at another bank and would probably have gone through had not the man who had it lost his nerve. He saw the cashier go to the book to verify the signature and, taking alarm, he hurriedly left the bank.

Mr. Bailey said he knows of at least $8,500 more of forged paper cashed at other banks and signed by names of men who contributed to the San Francisco funds. How much more the gang got away with he does not When the matter of bail for Mrs. McCarthy came up Lawyer Edward Carpel tried to get her out on a $500 bond. This Mr. Lockwood opposed vigorously and he told the Court that the woman was a dangerous person to be at large and asked for not less than $2,000. He said she had hanging over her an indictment for grand larceny, and that on August 10 she was held for the Grand Jury in the Harlem court. When indicted she was let out on a bond of $1,000. She was charged with "frisking" a Harlem man of a $600 gold watch. Mr. Lockwood said that he had since learned that the bond given in that case was a straw bond and that the man who offered it is a divekeeper not worth a dollar.

This made Magistrate Breen sit up and take notice. He demanded to know the name of the court clerk accepting such a worthless bond, saying that the Board of Magistrates recently passed a resolution making any clerk not investigating a bond personally responsible for it. He said he would make a thorough investigation.

Mr. Bailey of the Pinkertons said that the woman had returned the stolen watch and had been assured by the man who owned it that he would not appear to prose cute after he got his watch back.

Magistrate Breen said that he would make her bond $1,500. As she had no bondsman in court she was sent to the Tombs.

Mrs. McCarthy is 19 years old and is a little bit of a woman. She is not unattractive and is quick as a flash in getting out of a tight corner. The Pinkertons say she really was the brains of the gang. She has a baby 8 months old.

Her arrest did not trouble her at all apparently, and she had a little fun with Mr. Lockwood before she was sent back to the Tombs. "Run along, little boy," she said to him, making reference to his youthful appearance.

COL. AGUIRRE GETS NEWS OF REVOLT IN SANTIAGO.

Says Plantation Laborers Will Accept Government Pay and Fight for the Revolutionists-Gets More Signatures to the Petition to President Roosevelt.

Col. Charles M. Aguirre, who came here from Cuba to interest the members of the local Cuban colony in the rebellion against President Palma's Government, received a letter yesterday from a friend who is high in the Government service in Havana, stating that an uprising had started in the Santiago province under Gen. Clavel, a noted leader of the last rebellion, which has got beyond the control of the local authorities. The letter says that the Government is rigidly censoring all news concerning the Santiago revolt, because they know that if it is not immediately sup-almost certain. In order to protect himself, and to insure the delivery of the letter, Col. Aguirre's correspondent sent it here in care of a third person, whose name would not arouse the censors of the mails. In describing the revolution, the writer said: "Liberty in Cuba has given birth to a bouncing boy, pressed the success of the revolutionists is

who is assured of long life." Col. Aguirre said he was glad to hear that the Government was offering $2 a day for volunteers, "They'll get all the volunteers they want," he said. "The volunteers will stay with the Government long enough to get a little spending money, good horses and firearms and then they'll hustle back to the other side and fight as hard as they can. The plantation laborers, who are out of work on account of the bed season last winter, are all against Palma, as they consider him an aristocrat who cares nothing about the welfare of the people. You can imagine how quickly such men would fight for a government they hate." "The revolution aga inst Palma was more widely organized and carefully planned than the Government will admit," "Leaders have been appointed in every arms and ammunition to be ready for an outbreak all along the line when the signal was given. If the plans hadn't become known to the Government the revolutionists would have overturned Palma and his ring before they knew what had happened. Unfortunately the plans couldn' be kept secret, and there will now be much fighting and a great amount of guerrilla warfare before the trouble ends."

Col. Aguirre has heard nothing from his not believe he is heading a rebellion in his home province of Santa Clara, as some of the despatches say he has been doing. He knows he will be chapped into prison as soon as he is found and would scarcely invite arrest by going to his home, where he is known by every one.

The petition which is to be sent to President Roosevelt by local Cubans asking him to stop the revolution by sending a commission to Cuba to assure the people of an honest election is being generally signed by men whose business interests will suffer by a prolonged conflict. Many of the signers had to be assured that their names would not be made public, as they have relatives in Cuba who might be thrown into prison when the Government officials learned that they had had anything to do with the petition. The petition is now in the hands of a wealthy planter who has an office in this city. He said yesterday that he will have at least fifty signers and intends to take the petition to President Roosevelt some day this week.

PLANS FOR FINE, LONG ROAD. Preliminary Survey for Macadamized Route From Here to Adirondacks

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 25.-A preliminary survey has been made for macadamized roads, such as are built by the State, through the heart of the Adirondacks from Old Forge to Blue Mountain. The general Forge to Blue Mountain. The general plan proposes that the road shall start from New York city, proceed thence to Albany, to Utica, Remsen, Old Forge and Fourth Lake. The road will then follow the northern shores of Sixth, Seventh and Eighth lakes to Blue Mountain.

The scheme is to return by way of North Creek to some point on Lake George, and thence to Albany and New York, the starting point. The circuit will include all of the Fulton chain of lakes and nearly all the Adirondack and other resorts en route. It is said that this improved highway will be built from the $50,000,000 fund recently voted by the State for highway improvements and new State roads. There will be comparatively little to do in the way of new road building between Utica and New York, as much of that distance has already been covered by the State, but the improvement along this stretch will be extensive.

but the improvement along this stretch will be extensive.

The road from Utica to Old Forge will be improved by widening and macadamizing. Then through the Adirondack Mountains, where the course follows the highway, the road will be improved, but for the most part the road will be new.

A few of the older settlers in the Adirondack region fear this road will tend to civilize the Adirondacks, as they will be much more accessible, but the general public and those interested in the charm of the Adirondacks and preservation of the forests will hall the intelligence with enthusiasm.

MORAN REFUSES TO QUIT RACE.

Spurns Quincy's Plan to Have Bryan Pick Between Him and Douglas. Boston, Aug. 25 .- About a week ago District Attorney Moran suggested to Henry M. Whitney that William J. Bryan be appointed an umpire to decide which of the two men most deserved the Democratic nomination for Governor. Mr. Whitney declined any such arrangement and soon after withdrew from the

To-day, following a two hour conference between Josiah Quincy and ex-Gov. Dougas at the latter's home, Mr. Quincy sent a letter to Moran offering to submit to Bryan the question whether he or Douglas be the Democratic nominee.

Chairman Quincy said in his letter: There is every reason to believe that nothing but your candidacy stands in the way of the tender of the nomination to ex-Gov. Douglas. I firmly believe that the logic of the situation and his sense of public duty would compel his acceptance of the nomination, and I am sure you will agree with me that if nominated he would be elected.

"I propose, therefore, that Mr. Bryan, the national leader of the party and its prospectives candidate for the Presidency, be asked by us to give his opinion upon this simple question:

"Would the interests of the Democratic party of Massachusetts and the nation be best served by the withdrawal of your candidacy in favor of the nomination of ex-Gov. Douglas or by the continuance of your candidacy?

"You and myself have both publicly recognized Mr. Bryan as the national leader of the party: we are both concerned in the success of his candidacy two years "According to my views, the result of

"According to my views, the result of the coming election in Massachusetts may have no small influence in national politics. If we can elect our candidate for Governor this year it probably makes this State debatable ground in 1908.

He reiterates his declaration that he will n s withdraw from the contest and says that the opposition to his candidacy is merely the last despairing effort to retein ontrol of the Democratic party in this state for the corporations. Mr. Moran said:
"No matter what inspired newspaper suggestions may indicate, I shall not withdraw nor alter the position I took in the beginning, when it seemed as if the opposition to me when it seemed as if the opposition to me would be united and powerful. That which would not yield to their wiles and their threats when they were strong I certainly will not yield to their pleas now that they are confounded and apparently helpless." WON'T BE HEARST, SAYS PARKER Judge Suggests Jerome and Other Strong Men for Governor. CHICAGO, Aug. 25 .- Alton B. Parker arrived in Chicago last night on the way to the American Bar Association meeting in St.

He declared his belief that William Randolph Hearst will not be the Democratic nominee for Governor of New York, because, he declared, Mr. Hearst seems to have a party of his own. Mr. Parker also ventured the prediction that Speaker Cannon may not be a candidate for the Presidency, may not be a candidate for the Presidency, because he is a favorite son.

"There is plenty of good Democratic timber in New York. John B. Stanchfield, District Attorney Jerome, Mayor Adam of Buffalo, Edward M. Shepard, Judge Gaynor and Judge Herrick are all strong men," he said. "Any of them would make an exceptionally strong race for Governor."

Mr. Parker said the Democratic convention at Peoria and William Jennings Bryan's relation thereto reminded him of a young lawyer who had lost his case and was complaining about the verdict. The young man was told by Chief Justice Grover of the New York Court of Appeals: "Young man, you have two ways of recourse. You can go to the tavern and swear at the court, or you can appeal." "Mr. Bryan," commented the late Presidential candidate, "seems to have tried both ways."

A LESSON FROM BUFFALO For the Judiciary Nominators on How Not to Choose Candidates.

The Judiciary Nominators made public last night a communication received from a member of the Buffalo Bar Association explaining how the efforts of the lawyers of that city to nominate an independent judiciary ticket were defeated because the politicians got control of the move-

The Bar Association of this county called to be held at Buffalo for choosing ten names which should be recommended to both the Democratic and Republican conventions as the list from which their nominees for ju-dicial positions should be chosen. The candidates "played politics" before the meetng and votes for them were solicited through the districts, with the result that three received the highest number of votes, with the other fifth on the list: a lawyer of this city was fourth, but he at once withdrew as a candiment. The communication reads:

sociation expected to be carried out was voted down at the meeting, and one of the old and also prominent lawyers of this city delivered a large sized gold brick to the meeting by offering a resolution, which was dopted, to the effect that there should be only one ballot taken and four men voted for The consequence was that, as I remember it. there were 122 lawyers who received one or more votes. An address prepared by some lawyers of the party to which the four who had "played politics" did not belong was read at the meeting and was practically the only sign of independence shown there. You see that the Bar Association, in my judgment, unwisely led the lawyers of this district into the same bog which you so wisely avoided in New York.

STEVENS FOR GOVERNOR. The Batavia "News" Announces the Candidacy of the State Senator.

BATAVIA, N. Y., Aug. 25.—The Batavia Daily News, a leading Republican paper in the Forty-sixth district, makes an editorial announcement this evening of Senator Frederick C. Stevens's candidacy for Governor. Senator Stevens said to-night "I will accept the nomination for Governor at the hands of my party if it sees fit to so honor me and the nomination comes without factional differences."

The News, in urging the candidacy, says

"The candidate must be a strong, popular man and familiar with State alfairs. In order to be assured of carrying the State the Republican party must present a can-didate for Governor with the qualifications mentioned above, and such a man may be found in Frederick C. Stevens of Attica. His ability is unquestioned and his services have been prominent. During the four years of his Senatorship he became conspicuous by resean of his work as chairman of the Committee on Banks and of the of the Committee on Blanks and of the special gas commission, whose investigations and recommendations led to 80 cent gas in New York city.

"Judge Lynn of Rochester expressed the opinion of a large number of Democrate throughout the State when he said: "I guess most of us old Democrates will have 'I guess most of us old Democrats will have to take to the woods this fail.' In case of the nomination of Senator Stevens this necessity would be avoided and thousands of Democrats who feel that Hearstism must be crushed and yet object to the use of Jerome as the club would vote for Stevens without hesitation as the most direct means to that end."
